CHICAGO.

CHICAGO, August 22.-Wheat .- The opening was 1-4 lower than yesterday's closing figures. The market then ruled weak, and with only slight efluctuations, prices declined 5-8 and 3-4c., and then held steady. The closing was easy, 1-4 held steady. The closing was easy, 1-4 and 3-8c, from the bottom. There was a good deal of wheat for sale, but there was a meagre demand. In corn some changing was going on—the selling of September and buying of May—largely for New York account. The moderate quantity estimated for to-morrow helped to sustain the market at the decline, but it was prevented from reacting to any extent by the very encouraging outlook for the crop the very encouraging outlook for the crop in Iowa. The absence of orders was the most notable point in oats. Prices kept within a 1-4c. range. The stagnation in the provision trade was again in evidence to-day. There was a little business in ribs at the opening, and then trading died

The Latest in Entertainments. The favorite mode of diversion this sum-mer at afternoon entertainments is to en mer at afternoon entertainments is to engage a clairvoyante, daintily arrange and mysteriously light a small room opening from the drawing room, or, if there is no adjoining room, curtain off one end of the drawing room and introduce the guests to the presence of the sibyl one by one. As one's personality and affairs are of paramount interest to one's self, guests will wait patiently for hours for their turn if, as should be the case, there is a buffet in the dining room, wherefruit and creams, ices, confections and wines are served at frequent intervals, together with the tea and coffee, once all sufficient, but at this serson so little patronized.

SPAIN'S SOLDIER NUN.

Disguised as a Man, She Made a Gallant Officer and Fought Duels.

A very famous heroine in her day was Catalina de Erauso, still remembered vaguely as the "Spanish soldier nun." She left memoirs which have been translated or summarized or "romancified" in most European tongues. The truth of them has been disputed; but, upon the other hand, popes and kings, nobles and savants accepted every word, while evidence remained to support or question the statements.

Catalina, we are told, ran away from a nunnery in San Sebastian at the age of 15, ransformed her conventual habiliments into doublet and hose and found employment as a page in the household of a noble at Valladolid. Driven from this refuge by the appearance of her father, who had no suspicion nevertheless, she joined an expedition sailing to Peru under charge of Fer dinand de Cordova. Her ship was wrecked off Palta, and she alone refused to desert the captain, who stood by his vessel. Catalina then bulls a little raft, broke open the treasure chest, took as much gold as she could carry and set off for the shore, but the captain was drowned in embark-ing. She reached the town and accepted an engagement as manager to the tailor who made her new clothes. Complications of business and passion-for a great lady fell in love at sight-led to a first duel, in which she killed her man promptly. The great lady smuggled her out of prison, but Catalina found it necessary to repay this service by pushing the dame down stairs, probably breaking her neck. Then she jumped into a boat, put to sea and was picked up by a Spanish vessel bound for

At this place her brother was secretary to the governor, and he, all unconscious of the relationship, got her a commission in the army. Very soon afterward she dis-tinguished herself in an engagement, and for 13 years ranked as one of the most brilliant officers of the Spanish service-living mostly with her brother, but keeping the secret. This happy time came to an end in a midnight duel, when she killed a man unknown, who proved to be the same brother. Flying for life once more, Catalina crossed the Andes. All her companions perished, but she reached Tucuman after terrible adventures.

Another love affair, all on one side, and another fatal duel brought her literally to the gallows, but with the rope around her neck she escaped. Traveling on to Cuzco she joined an alcalde with a pretty wife and a gentleman, his friend. In a very few days Catalina perceived that these two had an understanding. The alcalde perceived it also and took an opportunity to murder his faithless friend. He would have murdered his wife, but Catalina snatched her to the saddle and rode furiously for Cuzco. The alcalde pursuing, she ran him through, but received a desperate wound. The fugi-tives got safely to the bishop's palace. Catalina knew, however, that her secret must be discovered now. She had just strength enough to reveal it to the bishop before fainting. That worthy man reported the whole story to the king, who sent orders that Catalina should be dispatched by the next ship. All Spain declared for the hero-ine. At her arrival Count Olivarez himself, the prime minister, met her; the king kissed her; the pope sent for and forgave her; Velasquez painted her portrait.-London Standard.

A Lucky Game of Chess. A story is told of the Moorish prince Abul Hejex, who was thrown into prison for sedition by his brother Muhammed, king of Granada. There he remained for several years, until the king, fearing he might escape, place himself at the head of a fresh revolt and seize the crown, ordered one of his pashas to see to his immediate execution. Abul Hejex was playing at chess when the pasha came and bade him prepare for death. The prince asked for two hours' respite, which was refused After earnest entreaty he obtained permission to finish his game. He was in no hurry about the moves, we are told, and well for him he was not, for before an hour had elapsed a measenger brought the news that Muhammed had been struck dead by apoplexy, and Abul was forthwith pro-claimed king of Granada.

It was indeed a small favor for the pasha to grant, but it altered the whole current of the king's career, and it is to be hoped that when from prisoner the latter became ruler he possessed that quality which king's are said not to have—that of gratitude to his unwitting preserver. If the pasha was not suitably rewarded, then truly was Abul Hejex an ungrateful wretch - Harper's Young People.

A Shrewd Fortune Hunter.

An enterprising German had tried in vain to make a fortune in many ways. Luck was always against him, and at last, to crown his misfortunes, he fell ill. But on what the doctor declared to be his deathbed an idea with millions in it struck him. He sent for a lawyer and dictated a will, in which he bequeathed vast sums of money to his wife, his family and various charitable institutions.

The lawyer, a notorious talker, spread the tidings, and great was the chagrin of numerous acquaintances to think how they had neglected to pay court to the dying

But our strategist wasn't so ill as the doctor had supposed, and presently he re-covered. Then it was that fortune hunters begged him to invest their money, urged him to accept loans and gave him a credit second to none in the city. At first he coyly refused these flattering testimonials, but was gradually forced to relent, and having lived in clover for a considerable time has just failed for an enormous sum.-London Tit-Bits.

How Do You Make the Decimal Point? In both France and Germany, one-fourth (%) reduced to a decimal is written as 0,25; in England it is written 0.25 (always with the period at the top of the line), and in the United States in this way, 0.25. France and Germany always use the comma (,), England and the United States the period (.), the only difference being the manner in which it is placed upon the line. Sir Isaac Newton is given the credit of originating the present English method of using the decimal point, his reasons being that by placing it at the top of the line it could be distinguished at a glance from the "full stop" punctuation mark. All English mathematicians use the mark in the way proposed by Newton, and the period as a sign of multiplication.—St. Louis Repub-

Marriage of Mr. O'Connor and Mis. Clancy.

Mr. Thomas O'Connor, a popular em-ploye of the Eichmond postoffice, and Miss Maggie T. Clancy were united in mar-riage at St. Patrick's Church yearerday afriage at St. Patrick's Church yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The crowd in attendance was an unusually large one, and the wedding was a very pretty affair.

Mr. Joseph O'Connor, of West Point, acted as best man, and the tollowing gentlemen were the ushers: Messrs. Peter Martin, John K. Ryan, John Roach, J. P. Green and Michael McNamara. The maid of honor was Miss Ellen Clancy, and the other lady attendants were Misses Minne Finnegau, Maggie McNamara, Nellis Duffy, Agnes O'Connor and Katie Murphy.

The newly-wedded pair will take an extended northern trip, and they will probably visit Buffalo and Niagara Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. O'Connor were the recipients of many handsome presents. Among them was a beautiful donation from the letter-carriers.

Central School and The Library.

Work is progressing very nicely upon the new Central School building. The joists of the second story are now being put in and the masoury is already com-pleted to this point. Of course the structure will not be completed as early as was anticipated owing to the existing financial condition.

Work has been resumed on the State
Library building after a suspension of ten weeks. The contractors yesterday received from New Jersey a large shipment of face brick and the full force of workmen will be put on this morning. The library building will very probably be under roof short November 1st.

Able Chairman. [The State.]

[The State.]

Next to having a strong ticket in the field, the most important individual in party affairs is the chairman, who is responsible for the conduct of the campaign. The Virginia Democrats have been very fortunate indeed during the past ten years in having able men in the position of chairman. The Hon. J. Taylor Ellyson, who has accepted the chairmanship for this campaign, is one of the best Democratic managers in Virginia. He has had more experience in this line than anybody in the State, and he feels confident of making our victory this year fully up to our recent standard. recent standard.
